Introducing Clarke's Webinar Series for Families

Join Clarke experts for webinars designed to support families with students using LSL in mainstream settings

Families are an integral part of students' success. Clarke's webinars for families are free and designed to bring additional resources to caregivers of Clarke alums and mainstream students.

Speech-language pathologists (SLPs) are experts in communication and work to assess, diagnose and treat auditory, speech, language, social and cognitive-communication differences and disorders including those associated with a diagnosis of hearing loss. SLPs can be a vital resource in supporting children with hearing loss as they grow.

Attendees will learn:

- the scope of practice of an SLP and its application to working with children with hearing loss
- the five areas of auditory, speech and language development that can be affected by a hearing loss
- how a speech-language pathologist's expertise can benefit a child in a school- or community-based setting
- when speech services are warranted and how to advocate for SLP consultation and/or services when deemed appropriate
